

I support media diversity

To promote competition, diversity, and localism in today's media market, I strongly believe that the FCC should retain all of the current media ownership rules now in question. These rules serve the public interest by limiting the market power of already huge companies in the broadcast industry.

While there may be indeed be more sources of media than ever before, the spectrum of views presented have become extremely limited. I can't find anything I'd want to hear on the radio anymore, except NPR. Radio has become irrelevant to me.

I think it is important for the FCC to not only consider the points of view of those with a financial interest in this issue, but also those with a social and civic interest.

Thank you,
